

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

When a comment and a solution thereagainst are described in any one of a review document, a minute and a pending issue list, a reflecting unit reflects the comment and solution upon a corresponding portion of the document associated with the contents of the comment and solution. When, in connection with the review document, minute and pending issue list to be prepared during review, a specified comment or solution is selected on an editing screen of a system for editing each of the review document, minute and pending issue list, information about positions at which the comment and solution are post-scribed is acquired from a comment-solution management table and displayed on the editing screen of a associated system.